DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 5 and 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
3. Claims 5 and 11-12 recites the limitation "the limbs". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burmeister et al (US 6,027,361) in view of Onoue (US 5,282,758).

Regarding claim 1, Burmeister et al. disclose an insulation displacement contact comprising:

a slotted (30), sprung contact region as a contact-making slot on a connecting bracket (12); and an outer spring clip (14) surrounding and reinforcing the contact region.

Burmeister et al. do not disclose the spring clip forms an insulation displacement blade in at least one end region.

Onoue teaches an insulation displacement contact (1) having an outer spring clip (2) with an insulation displacement blade (12) forming an end region (11).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide an insulation displacement blade into Burmeister's spring clip, as taught by Onoue for holding a wire cable.

Regarding claim 2, the modified contact of Burmeister et al. discloses a blunt contact zone (E1, see Examiner's attachment).

Regarding claim 3, the modified contact of Burmeister et al. discloses the spring clip and blade are formed from a suitably hard material, and wherein the contact region is formed from electrically conductive material.

Regarding claims 4 and 9-10, the modified contact of Burmeister et al. discloses each connecting bracket forms a contact-making slot (30).

Regarding claims 5 and 11-12, the modified contact of Burmeister et al. discloses at least one of the spring clip and the connecting bracket are designed such that a limb (28) of the spring clip secure the contact-making slot in its position.

Regarding claims 6 and 13-14, the modified contact of Burmeister et al. discloses the end region is located in front of the contact region.

Regarding claims 7-8 and 15-24, Burmeister et al. in view of Onoue do not disclose a connecting terminal or a terminal strip having at least one insulation displacement.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to duplicate the insulation displacement contact, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8.
